

The United States needs more diversification in the newsroom, not less, the frightening trend now in our governmental institutions. Freedom of the press, guaranteed in our constitution, will be further eroded by the FCC lifting the bans on media cross-ownerships. Press independence is absolutely necessary to preserve a democracy where the citizens have quality information to make balanced judgments on critical issues.